UNCLE HORACE BOISE, Ex-GOV. OF IOWA.

We see "Uncle" Horace Boise, is out with an article trying to explain, why it was that Iowa lost in population during the decade from 1900 to 1910. A goodly share of his article is given over to the "roasting" of the Republican party, and incidentally he accuses the prohibition law, passed something like twenty-five years ago as a cause. However, "Uncle" Horace declares himself in favor of "Local Option," just as we have it in Utah in the following words:

"In two successive state elections this law (state wide prohibition) was repudiated by a clear majority of the electors of the state. In Iowa, it was absolutely fair to every section of the state. Under it not one drop of intoxicating liquor could have been sold legally as a beverage in any community of the state where a majority of one was opposed to it, and on the other hand, no minority could compel another community to submit to an unlawful and unregulated sale of such liquor against the will of the majority."

We had almost forgotten to say that we are indebted to the "wet" column in the Standard for the above quotation; we are always desirous of giving credit, where credit is due.

This is so clearly the present condition in Utah, that we thought special attention should be called to it. "Uncle" Horace is in favor of "Local Option," under which "not one drop of intoxicating liquor could have been sold legally as a beverage in any community of the state where a majority of one was opposed to it, and he says he is in favor of "high license" where the majority was in favor of the open saloon. That is the Utah law exactly, under which we are endeavoring to show a majority for a "dry" town.

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC AND ITS ATTENDING EVILS.

The most conservative estimate of our courts, and of the thinking men of the country, based upon facts gathered by our bureau of census, is that fifty per cent of all crime, degeneracy and poverty, coming under the purview of the courts, the public charities and the hospitals, is directly chargeable to the liquor traffic.

The revenue derived from the liquor traffic in New York city for the year 1908, was $5,700,000.00; while the expenditures of the city for the same time, on account of crime, degeneracy and poverty was $24,735,000.00. Fifty per cent of the expenditures, would be $12,367,500.00, subtracting from that the amount received in revenue from the liquor traffic, and you have $12,367,500.00, which the people of New York City paid for the privilege of having the open dramshop, and for the further privilege of supporting twelve thousand "able bodied paupers."

WILL CLOSING THE SALOONS KILL OUR CITY.

The stock argument of the supporters of the saloon is, that it will ruin our town, thousands of people will leave, and it will prevent thousands of people from coming here." Now let us look that proposition squarely in the face. If the absence of saloons will kill our town and will keep people from coming west, in search of homes, why is not the saloon advertised as an inducement to homeseekers? If Ogden City, the Weber Club, or the Chamber of Commerce were getting out a booklet to advertise the advantages of our City, they would, and have, given the number of our factories, our creameries, our canneries, manufacturers, etc. Did our City, or either of these commercial associations, forget that our fifty-two saloons were an asset? Or, in sending out the advertising matter did they not fight shy of saying anything about the saloons? They told of our beautiful school houses, of our numerous churches, but never a word about the saloons. Why? Because they knew full well that a saloon is a debit to any City, not an asset, and can never be placed on the credit side. They knew if they advertised that they had fifty-two saloons and advertised the amount of money that passed over the saloon bar each year, instead of its attracting home seekers it would drive them away.

If we are mistaken, we ask some of these business men who are frightened to death for fear prohibition will keep people from coming here to live, to wire the Union Pacific officials, to not neglect to give the fact, to let it be in the new booklet they are getting out advertising Ogden, that we HAVE FIFTY-TWO SALOONS, ONE MILLION DOLLARS IS SPENT EVERY YEAR OVER THE SALOON BAR, and so that you may not think we are saying that we are the worst of it, you may add, the CITY RECEIVES SIXTY-FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS EACH YEAR FROM THE SALOONS. Will some business man step to the front and agree to take on the liquor traffic? What would the railway officials think of you? Then what ought you to think of yourself for advancing such an argument here at home, when it would be the last thing you would think of telling or admitting if you could help it, if you were in the east drumming up home seekers. Out upon such argument. It is not made with sincerity, by any sensible man.

Mrs. Shepherd and Mrs. Gordon at the ladies' mass meeting in the Tabernacle, Thursday, June 22, at 2:30 p. m.

ABLE BODIED PAUPERS.

Every saloon keeper within the city of Ogden, is an able bodied pauper, who lives off the earnings and business of the country. Suppose Jones puts up a bar, stands behind it for an entire year, takes in $5000 and gives out nothing but a pinch of sawdust for each ten-cent purchase. He has kept Jones and his family? The earners and business men of the country, who bought his pinches of sawdust, just because Jones was a good fellow. Jones has produced nothing, and has given nothing of value for his $5000. He is an able bodied pauper.

Suppose Smith sets up a bar; stands behind it for an entire year; takes in $5000 and gives out nothing but whiskey. Who has kept Smith and his family? The earners and business men of the country, who bought his whiskey because they were "good fellows." Smith has produced nothing and he has given nothing of value for his $5000. He is an able bodied pauper.

What is the difference between the two? Jones was considerate enough, to take his living for no return, and harmed nobody, unless they ate the sawdust. Smith was not contented with simply taking his living, but harmed everybody he could, because they drank his whiskey.

Had Smith given sawdust instead of whiskey, he would have been as innocent as Jones. Jones was a harmless pauper, Smith was a destructive pauper—that is all the difference.

A FEW WORDS TO THE LABOR UNIONS OF OGDEN.

One of the greatest demonstrations on record, against the liquor traffic was that held in Toronto, Canada, in November, 1909, at the International Convention of the Federation of Labor. There was opposition on the part of the delegates, yet four thousand men met in a great auditorium, and after hours of discussion, participated in by the world's best known labor leaders, by resolution joined with the temperance workers of the world against the open "dram shop," declaring it to be the labor's worst enemy.

In its desperate fight for existence, the liquor traffic has gone the extreme limit of its power, in an effort to hoodwink labor into the support of the saloon. It catches the laborer's checks and thereby gets the "bite" out of it, and too often, that "bite" means the entire week's earnings, sending the poor laboring man home to his family with empty pockets and an aching head. The saloon claims to be the real friend of labor, when in reality it is his sworn enemy.

Again we quote from John R. Lennon, treasurer of the AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR, who says: "We should protect WOMEN, and keep them outside the factory, so that they may become the mothers and home-keepers of the Nation. Will any man dare to say that the liquor business has not driven countless women to the factory, the mill and the wash tub? The saloon drives the boys and the girls from the schools to the factories, to supply the toll of the saloon keeper taken from the father, when he goes to his poor man's club to get his check cashed."

Again, says Mr. Lennon: "As one trade-unionist, I am unalterably against the business that has such tendencies as this. The saloon, without any qualifications, because I am a trade-unionist. That is my primary reason. The unions make every possible effort to increase wages. The stream of influence tends to decrease wages, for the reason, that every cent the union man spends in a saloon, is an absolute waste, and consequently, his real wages are reduced by every amount the saloon gets from him. It takes his money and gives him nothing of value in return. The union, therefore, is on one side of this question and the saloon is on the other."

John F. Curran, union machinist, and one of Chicago's leading Labor Union advocates, writes at length, and among other things he says: "Workmen, vote against your worst enemy, the saloon. When the workmen down the Whiskey Trust and the Beer Trust then they will be able to get their rights. Facts prove that the saloon is an enormous financial loss, as well as a moral degradation, for a community to maintain it."

Another paragraph from John Mitchell, whom none will deny as one of the greatest labor leaders of our time: "When a man comes home mentally and physically exhausted, he is more likely to seek a stimulant in the saloon. Nothing has done more to bring misery on innocent women and children than money spent in the saloon. Money spent in the saloon is not surplus money. The pay of workmen is seldom sufficient to leave a surplus. It is true that every scandal, few as they have been in organized labor, can be traced to some connection with the saloon."

As a result of experience gained in the late street car strike the Central Labor Council of Philadelphia, by a vote of 82 to 34 has adopted a resolution that union workmen should "abstain and vote for local option at every opportunity." It was found that the saloon made trouble for the workmen, by inciting the hoodlums to riotous action, for which the workmen were blamed, and by their corrupt influence in city politics, which prevented a fair deal by the city administration.

Men who produce nothing, which contributes to the comfort and well-being of the people of a country, are burdens on labor and industry. Eighty per cent of this burden is caused by the liquor traffic; those engaged in the business produce nothing of value to society; they are leeches; labor and industry should not carry their burden. Then it is self evident, if our reasoning is correct that prohibition of the liquor traffic will go a long way toward the solution of the labor problem.

The labor leaders say: Vote out the saloon. Yet the saloon writer asks if they say a word for prohibition. Well, we are not able to draw the distinction between voting out the saloon and prohibiting the saloon from disposing of its wares. They are synonymous, and when the leaders advocate a vote against the saloon they endorse prohibition.

DIG FOR GOLD TO PAY FOR BUILDING

The local lodge of Odd Fellows has engaged in mining at the site where its new building is being erected. While workmen were excavating for foundations for the building, a rich prospect of gold was discovered on bedrock. A sluice box was put in and all dirt excavated is being run through it to extract the gold. Good values are being taken out daily, and the total sum will amount to a large figure. The lodge will use the gold toward paying for the building.

When excavating was first started a gold coin of early mintage was found. It is engraved on one side "August Humbert, United States Assayer, 1852," and on the other side "United States of America, $10, 884 thousand." One side contains an eagle and the other side a beautiful scroll. Such coins are rare now and worth a large sum.

REV. CARVER'S SUNDAY SERMON

Speaking upon the theme of "The Biblical and Popular Beliefs Regarding Salvation," Rev. Carver, speaking on the question, "Is Church Membership Essential to Salvation?" said in part:

"There is a vivid, structureless substance in animal organisms which scientists call protoplasm or bioplasm. In many ways it is one of the most wonderful of all nature's storehouse of marvels. As one has said, 'This viscid substance throbs and surges with life like an ocean in a storm. It has the marvelous power of turning dead matter into life.' Dr. Gregg tells us, 'It builds up from dead matter the complete human body, brain, arteries, nerve, bone and muscle.' This wonderful substance seems to be ever building, building, taking lifeless matter and weaving, spinning, constructing it into brain, bone and tissue. It seems as if in this common substance you have the meeting place between life and death, growth and decay. God and matter."

In many ways it is an illustration of just what the church is doing in the moral and spiritual sphere. It is taking the spiritually and morally dead and building them up into living and transforming agencies. Only go back far enough and you will find that most everyone of us has been in institutions and customs have their origin in the church of God.

Macaulay in speaking of Athens says: "Her power is indeed manifest at the bar, in the senate, on the field of battle and in the schools of philosophy. But these are not her glory. Wherever literature consoles sorrow or assuages pain, wherever it brings gladness to the eyes which fall with wakefulness and tears, and ache for the dark house and the long sleep. There is exhibited in its noblest form the immortal influence of Athens."

And so catching Macaulay's spirit an eminent divine has said of the church "It has transformed savage and sensual empires; it has mastered the barbarians; it has changed the race of Europe; it has built cathedrals and hospitals and universities; it has covered America with its appropriate civilization; it has made Christendom the leader of the progress of the world. It has done all this, but while it has done this, it is not its chief glory. Its true glory is that it has wiped the tears of sorrow from its disciples and has comforted the hearts which were desolate with grief and has given celestial visions to those who dwell in the realm of death."

Often we hear of one who while speaking highly of God and of Christ has little use for the church, today save in the time of the revival. But the church is far more perfect today than it was in Christ's day and yet Christ even gave to his complete influence. He was a member of it. He sought its ordinance. He attended its services, took part in them and laid his heart towards their support. He was jealous of its purity and twice showed it by cleansing the temple. He declared his intention of founding it anew, which he did and all that was vital of his life command and teaching was gathered up and kept by it. In fact the onward march of his cause would have been impossible without it.

In spite of all which can be said against the church this much is true, it is the world's hope and blessing today and the only one who is at variance with it is the one who gives it no real place in his life. Must a man be a member of it to be saved? That depends upon the reason why one is not a member. If it is in distance or inability kept from it, that most assuredly is not a bar to salvation, but if one is not a member because he would rather lead a worldly, self-centered and Godless life, pay neither heed to nor give time to spiritual things, he bearer of no responsibility for the moral and spiritual condition of his place and time then tell me why should such an one desire to enter heaven at all? If he has no desire for "God or Christ," he should be desirous to be near them eternally? If he has no love for spiritual things here why should he seek a spiritual realm eternal? The fact, however, is that these same people who have seemingly no use for a church here, are persuaded to live in a country where there are no churches. They do not desire their children reared apart from the influences and blessings which only a church can develop. They desire church influence to sweeten and purify the moral atmosphere about their homes, but do not desire a part of the burden and denial essential to the creating of that moral life.

Now faith is an active and not a passive word. It implies action. And faith in Christ is not passive belief in him as a historical personage. It is active following his will. You can apply this to your own case. We know of no other promise for those who have the free opportunity to accept or reject him. Neither can we understand how anyone can attempt to follow the Christ or seek his spirit and at the same time not place their lives in full mission with his work.

LIFE INSURANCE AND THRIFT

The number of people in this country who make use of life insurance as a means of saving exceeds the total number who avail themselves of all the other recognized modes of thrift. Thus, if we add together 9,000,000 of savings bank depositors, the 7,000,000 of persons who own their own homes, the 2,000,000 builders and loan society stockholders and the 1,750,000 of corporation stockholders, we shall have, not reckoning duplications, not more than 20,000,000 of investors, whereas the number of persons who hold policies, ordinary and industrial, in life insurance companies exceeds 28,000,000. These 28,000,000 do not include the number of certificate holders in fraternal and assessment associations. The total life insurance carried in the United States today is about $150 per head of the population, a sum considerably greater than that of any other country in the world. The companies reporting to the New York insurance department had on December 31, 1910, $14,680,268,315 insurance in force. They had a total premium income of $525,000,966, and assets amounting to $3,065,620,325, which represents approximately as large a sum of money as the total savings in all the banks of the country.—Moody's Magazine.
